STUDY PRESIDENT'S PROPOSAL, FEDERAL BUSINESS CONTROL

Roosevelt Favors Regulation of All Commerce, to Spur Recovery

AN AMAZING VENTURE

Would Use Taxing Process to Benefit Labor and Owner

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11.—A precedent shattering proposal of President Roosevelt for Federal control of business and industry through the government's constitutional power of taxation, was studied today by administration leaders on Capitol Hill.

The President favors Federal regulation of all commerce, in order to spur the economic recovery of business and industry. He believes this could be achieved, not by invoking the constitutional power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce, but by imposing a national procession, or occupational tax on all industries and then exempting such units as voluntarily carry out the government's program for economic recovery.

This proposal for regulating business would mark an amazing venture on the part of the Federal government. The President would use the taxing process to benefit both labor and owner. The program would set up a Federal business control board to negotiate trade or labor agreements in each industry. Labor would benefit by agreements to shorten the working week, improve working conditions; to eliminate child labor and to fix a minimum scale of wages. Owners would be helped by agreements to fix a minimum sale price on all commodities; to eliminate price wars and ruinous competition.

PARAGUAY DECLARES WAR

Geneva, May 11.—Disarmament was thrust into the background as the League of Nations proceeded to drestle with its most thorny problem since the Sino-Japanese dispute. — Paraguay's declaration of war on Bolivia.

The League is faced with the task of acting in the first formal declaration of hostilities since the organization was founded.

The special committee appointed to study the dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia in the Gran Chaco was called into an emergency session. Only two members instead of the original three attended.

Owing to the absence of Jose Matos of Guatemala, the committee decided to convene an extra-ordinary session of the League Council to take up the Paraguay-Bolivia war on Monday.

The League received a cable from Bolivia this morning requesting the League's intervention. Cables are now being prepared urging both parties not to resort to hostile activities.

ARGENTINA NEUTRAL

Buenos Aires, May 11.—With Argentina pledged to strict neutrality and Chile and Brazil taking the same attitude, the declaration of war by Paraguay will have little effect on the Chaco conflict, officials predicted today.

Formal declaration of hostilities against Bolivia was made by Paraguay on the announced purpose of "enabling our neighbors to take up definite positions." Warfare is now being carried on over a broken front in the Chaco Jungle, disputed between the fighting nations for 12 years. Both armies are reported well entrenched, but are short of supplies. While it is impossible to estimate the strength of the forces, it is known that Bolivia has lost 40,000 dead and 90,000 wounded. Paraguay's losses are estimated at two-thirds of Bolivia's.

MOVES TO TEMPER ACT

Washington, D. C., May 11.—President Roosevelt moved today to temper the Compensation Act he had imposed on World War veterans whose disability could be traced directly to their service during the period of the conflict.

Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, the veteran administrator, was under orders to review the schedule of "line disabilities" so as to "effect more equitable levels of payment."

In ordering this review the White House was making good its promise that the original slash of ex-service-men's pensions was experimental and would be refunded if proof was furnished that undue hardships accrued.

PLATTER DINNER SERVED TO 115 "MOTHERS" HERE

Mothers' Association of Bristol Has Final Meeting For Season

EXCELLENT PROGRAM

Mothers' Association of Bristol schools held its regular monthly meeting last evening in the high school auditorium, Wilson avenue, and this being the last meeting of the season, a platter dinner was served at seven o'clock in the cafeteria dining room by a committee of women, with Mrs. Maurice Roche as chairlady.

Covers were laid for 115, and the menu consisted of: baked shad, parsleyed new potatoes, peas, tomato and carrot salad, rolls, coffee, puff shells filled with crushed strawberries topped with whipped cream.

A business meeting was held after dinner with Mrs. Harry Pope, presiding. In honor of Mothers' Day, a gift was presented to the oldest and youngest mother present at the meeting. Mrs. Sara Bowman and Mrs. Cornell were the recipients.

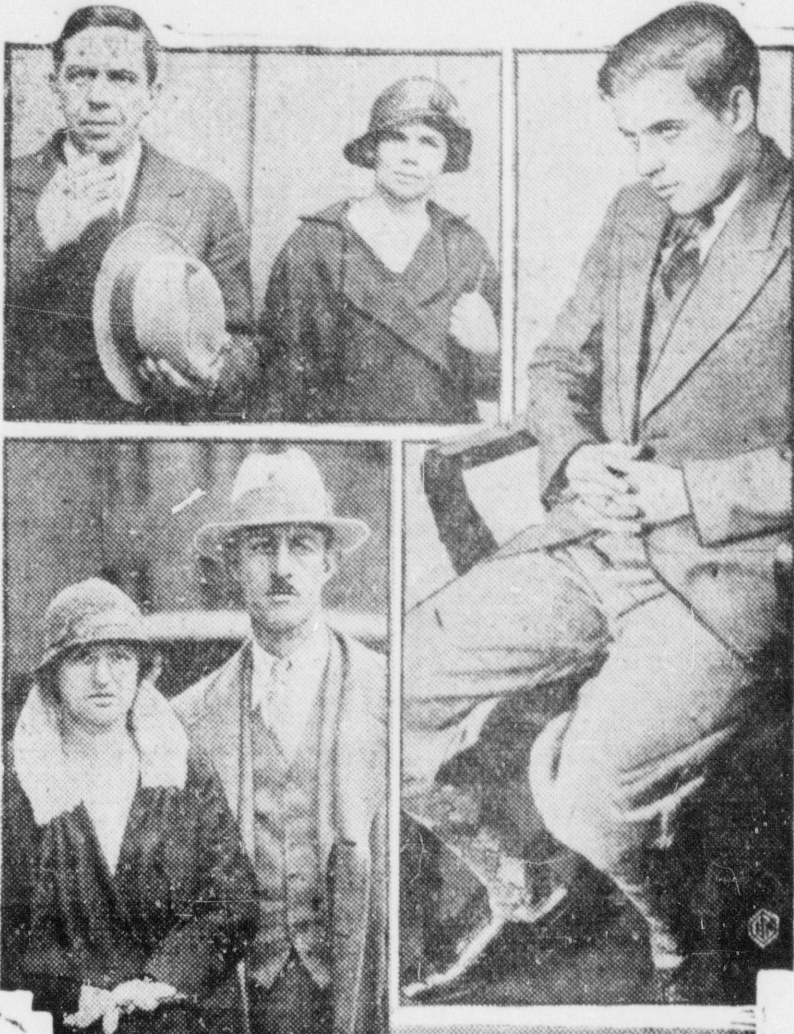

Following business, the meeting was turned over to the entertainment committee with Mrs. Chauncey Stoneback, Sr., as directress. The program was made up of three sketches, two dance numbers and three vocal solos.

Those taking part were: Mrs. Chauncey Stoneback, Sr., master of ceremonies; Mrs. Neil McVaine, Mrs. John Wicher, Mrs. Earl McEuen, Mrs. Harvey Stoneback, Mrs. A. D. Wistar, Mrs. Maurice Hubbs, Mrs. Blanche Gillies, Mrs. Virginia Saranzac.

Solos were given by Mrs. McEuen, Mrs. Adell Johnson, Mrs. Oscar Hermann, who also was the accompanist of the evening. Ma's Orchestra furnished music for dancing which followed.

Members of Robert W. Bracken Post, 382, American Legion, and Legion Auxiliary have been holding a tournament in pinochle, and last evening the final games were played, with Legion members winning. The Auxiliary will treat the Legionnaires in the near future.

At Boy's Trial for Murder

As unconcerned as if he were sitting in Sunday school, 16-year-old Harry Murch, of Queens, N. Y., is shown at right as he sat in court and listened to the testimony in his trial on a charge of slaying 12-year-old Willie Bender, last January. At lower left are the parents of the accused boy, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Murch, while at upper left are Mr. and Mrs. Bender, parents of the slain boy. A playmate of Murch, Johnny Miller, 10, thrilled the court with a graphic eye-witness account of the killing of young Bender.

DOYLESTOWN PATROLMAN IS SHOOTING CHAMPION

I. L. Rothermel Hits 464 Out of Possible 500 at Harrisburg

THIRTY IN THE FIELD

DOYLESTOWN, May 11.—Patrolman I. L. Rothermel, Doylestown sub-station of state highway patrol, Troop E, has secured the honor of being the individual pistol shooting champion of the State Patrol. This honor was won in inter-troop competition at the state capital, through the keen vision and steady hand of Rothermel.

The patrolman registered the highest score ever recorded at the inter-troop matches, these being held over the patrol range in Harrisburg. Rothermel had out of a possible score of 500, a total of 464. In the field were 39 crack shots, being groups in six teams.

Patrolman T. Jones, Greensburg, two years ago made the previous high championship, getting 445 out of 500.

Second honors this year went to Patrolman J. W. Heineman, of Franklin, score of 461 out of 500; and third place to Patrolman T. E. Jones, of Butler, a former champion, with a score of 455 out of 500.

Troop E won the high honors of the inter-troop shoot this year by virtue of the fact that her entrants won three of the outstanding events of the match including the 50-yard firing event, the obstacle match and the individual high that was won by Patrolman Rothermel. Captain William J. Ruch is commanding officer of Troop E with headquarters in Philadelphia.

In winning the inter-club individual match this year, the accuracy of Patrolman Rothermel was almost uncanny. His outstanding skill was demonstrated in the 50-yard line-fire event in which he punctured the score sheet for a score of 99 out of a possible 100.

In computing Patrolman Rothermel's new high-mark score of 464, it was necessary for him to compete in

MORRISVILLE LOSES STATE APPROPRIATION

High School Students Find
That Census Totals
5,225

MANY GIVE ASSISTANCE

MORRISVILLE, May 11.—Due to the fact that the census of the town taken by the senior class of the high school shows a tabulation of 5,225 residents, Morrisville will not receive the $10,000 appropriation from the state for school purposes which it had hoped for. Had the count shown the population under 5,000 Morrisville would have been reclassified and taken from the third class school district and placed in the fourth class.

By taking this count of Morrisville, however, the class has saved the town at least $250—the cost of hiring an official census taker to obtain the same information. It was thought that the original population of 5,363 shown in the 1930 official U. S. census, had now dropped to below 5,000.

This project under guidance of Stanford Offner enabled all students of the senior class to participate. Some visited homes, others compiled the statistics, while others prepared maps and charts. A report will be given as part of the graduation exercises in June. Most of the time required to enumerate the houses was given during the regular "Problems of Democracy" and English classes and during study periods. No marks were given to the students for the times spent in carrying out the census.

A board of four students, called the directorate, had complete charge of the project and directed the taking, recording and tabulating of the census. The board consisted of Gene Donaldson, Abe Galtz, Doris Snelson and William Anderson. Theodore Howe had charge of the making of the large map. Others who assisted were:

HISTORY OF CHINA'S RETREAT

BEFORE THE

BUCKS COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

AT DOYLESTOWN, MAY 6, 1933

Not long after van Braam had become established at his new seat in Bucks County he again became a grandfather, Everarda had a daughter, and now there were four little Roberts children to pester him. Concerning some of their pranks let us hear from the oldest, named Lucius Quintus Cincinnatus, after the Society of the Cincinnati, & which his father Major Richard Brooke Roberts had been one of the founders:

"My grandfather had a span of carriage horses, of a very untractable temper and could not be handled without danger. The coachman was about to water them at the river. I desired him to let me ride one to the water, which he did. On my return to the stable the horse ran with me, and not being a very skillful rider, as he turned a corner to pass a gate, I fell off my whole length in a hog trough,

Police Arrest Two And Solve Several Robberies

DOYLESTOWN, May 11.—With the arrest of Donald Eisenhart, 20, of Erwinna, and Enos Diehl, 20, of 1206 Butler street, Easton, a number of Bucks county thefts have been cleared up.

Trooper George Sauer, of the Doylestown sub-station of State Police arrested both men. A third man implicated in the thefts, William Rapp, 22, of Ferndale, is now serving a sentence of one to five years in the Bucks County Prison for robbing Trauger's Garage at Ferndale last February.

All three pleaded guilty in Court to the Ferndale robbery charge but Eisenhart and Diehl were placed on probation, only Rapp being sentenced.

Further suspicion pointed to Eisenhart recently and Trooper Sauer placed him under arrest. Under questioning at the local sub-station of State Police, Eisenhart implicated Diehl and Rapp in other thefts and Diehl was placed under arrest yesterday.

Both Eisenhart and Diehl admit a series of thefts that they knew about at the time of the Ferndale robbery but said nothing about.

Eisenhart admitted breaking into the smoke house of Howard Bean, Kintnersville on the night of February 21 when he stole fifteen hams, four pieces of bacon, and four shoulders of pork valued at $60. Diehl took part in the thefts, it is reported.

Eisenhart also confessed to entering the garage of Good Brothers, Ottsville, on February 21, and stealing tires and tubes, and to stealing tires and tubes from George Casey, Jr., Erwinna, that were sold to a Phillipsburg, N. J., junk dealer. The Good tires were found on Diehl's car when he was arrested in Easton.

Eisenhart was released under $900 bail and Diehl was committed to the county prison in default of $600 bail.

GIRL WHO SHOT DAD KISSES AND MAKES UP

Ann Sichkar is Held for The Next Term of Court

PARENT BREAKS DOWN

DOYLESTOWN, May 11.—Anne Sichkar, 18-year-old step-daughter of Philip Sichkar, 42, Plumstead township farmer, who last Easter Monday fired five pistol shots at her father following an altercation that was the aftermath of a drinking party at a neighbor's home, yesterday kissed her Dad and "made up."

The girl showed little emotion but her father broke and wept bitterly as he was embraced by the step-daughter who made an unsuccessful attempt to murder him.

This scene was enacted in the office of Justice of the Peace W. Carlile Hobsack, Doylestown, when Anne was held for the next term of criminal court of Bucks county on charges of assault and battery with intent to kill, aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery. Bail was fixed in the sum of $1500 and it is likely the girl will be released within the next twenty-four hours.

Trooper John Rothwell, of the Doylestown sub-station of State Police, the only witness called by District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, related the girl's story of the shooting and stated that last Friday he received from the Grand View Hospital, two .38 caliber bullets that were taken from Sichkar's body by the surgeon that day.

Sichkar was at the hearing. For a time it was doubtful whether he would recover from the wounds inflicted by his daughter, and following the shooting was removed from the Doylestown Emergency Hospital to the Grand View Hospital in Sellersville, where his recovery steadily progressed.

Anne was represented at the hearing by William Reese Scott, 3rd, of Doylestown. Following the hearing Anne and her counsel went into conference to discuss the approaching

BISHOP TAITT VISITS HERE AND CONFIRMS 19

Preaches at St. James's P. E.
Church; Emphasizes Visitation Importance

SPEAKS TO THE CLASS

The Rt. Rev. Francis M. Taitt, D. D., Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, made his annual visit to St. James's parish last evening and confirmed a class of 19. The service was in charge of the rector, the Rev. George E. Boswell.

Bishop Taitt preached the sermon, using as his text the second verse of the second chapter of the first Epistle of St. Peter, "Having your conversation honest among the Gentiles, that whereas they speak against you as evildoers, they may by your good works, which they shall behold, glorify God in the day of visitation." He defined the two words, conversation and honest, pointing out that conversation really means the way of living, and that honest means beautiful. He emphasized the importance of the visitation of the Bishop, for it symbolizes to the congregation members that they are more than members of a congregation, and in reality members of the Church of God. The end of all religion, said the Bishop, is character. Every one has at some time in his life, a day of visitation from God, the times when he becomes conscious of duties to do what is right, and to fight manfully against what is wrong.

The Bishop also made a brief address to the confirmation class, in which he explained that confirmation is not taking upon oneself any new responsibility; that responsibilities come in life without our sanction, and that we have to take them on from a point of duty. He pointed out that the laying on of hands symbolizes that God's hand is ever over us, to strengthen us and to enable us to resist temptation.

The Rev. Stanley Wilcox, rector of St. Paul's Church, Chester, was present and presented a candidate from his church, who had formerly lived in Bristol. He presented Edith L. Tomlinson, of Chester. The following were presented by the Rev. Boswell: Henry E. Ancker, Charles F. Boyd, Charles Horger, Charles S. Perkins, Walter A. Fagan, Arley E. Downing, Sarah E. Carman, Grace Elizabeth Hubbs, Alice W. Nelson, Margaret R. Smith, Doris W. Nelson, Selma V. Kershaw, Fannie E. Bagley, Emma H. Bagley, Dorothy L. Bingham, Jane Kershaw, Ruth Richardson, Jessie Bell, and Arthur John Pickering, Jr.

Fathers' Association To Hold Meeting Tonight

Members of the Bristol Fathers' Association will end the season tonight with the biggest meeting of the year, if plans go through as arranged.

President Richard French, in announcing the program, said: "As this is the final meeting of the present season, we have made every effort to make this the best. In addition to the orchestra, we will have some good vaudeville acts, and hope the members will come out in large numbers."

Eddie Stang, well-known comedian, will amuse the audience with his funny stories and songs. Another act that is sure to please is the colored quartet from the Industrial School at Bordentown. This group appeared here before and were well received.

The Librarian of the High School will give a short talk on a most important subject.

At the conclusion of the meeting, refreshments will be served.

"Lion Man" Starred In Romantic Thriller at Grand

Excitement runs high in the new film which opens tonight at the Grand Theatre, for "King of the Jungle" is the story of a real wild man—a boy brought up from early childhood by a pack of lions.

The role of the Lion Man is in the hands of a newcomer, Buster Crabbe, swimming champion of international renown, and is played by him remarkably well. The magnificent physique of the young athlete was originally responsible for his selection for the important role.

Frances Dee, who is one of the most promising of Hollywood's younger group of embryo stars, gives a great deal of charm to the role of Ann Rogers, young school teacher and the only person who can handle the Lion Man when he is captured and brought to America as a circus performer.

Beginning in the African jungle, where the Lion Man rules supreme among his lions, the film moves from one exciting climax to another, culminating in a circus fire, during which the maddened animals break loose and stalk through a city's streets, leaving behind them a trail of blood and ruin.

A SETTLEMENT NEEDED

How much longer the railroads of the country can postpone replenishing their worn out equipment is a question made prominent by government figures showing that more than 500,000 freight cars which should be on the junk pile still are being used.

Railroads, under the pressure of economic necessity, are keeping equipment in service as long as possible, but each year sees a large quantity sent to the scrap heap because it is impossible to use it any longer. More than 100 locomotives and 16,000 freight cars have been junked by the Southern railroad. Other lines have discarded proportional amounts in recent years.

All this can only mean that the time is rapidly approaching when replenishment must begin. The roads naturally will hold back as long as they possibly can in order to see just where they stand before going back into the market for equipment. With a definite railroad program apparently taking shape in President Roosevelt's mind, this attitude on their part is a wise one. The roads don't know yet just where they will emerge in the industrial readjustments taking place.

Once this problem is settled however, and there are indications that this soon may occur, they will be compelled to bring their equipment up to date. Revival of general railroad buying would prove a development of tremendous importance in getting business generally back on its feet. A quickening impulse would be sent immediately through a large section of industry. Steel and iron and other materials would be needed in big quantities as equipment manufacturers geared up their long idle or partially idle plants. Workers would be recalled and the buying power of a big section of the nation would be increased.

The railroad question is one of the most important facing the administration. So many various factors are involved that it can not be solved overnight. The vital importance it bears to business recovery makes it necessary, though, that no unnecessary time be lost in finding a settlement. Its solution would mark a real advance in the war on the depression.

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

CHAPTER XXXVIII

Wilton Street was dark and silent when Mary Faith left that night, but the windows of the Maldons' apartment were brightly lighted and there was a long black glittering row of parked automobiles at the curb. The taxicab drew up beside them and Mary Faith felt three or four drops of icy rain on her face as she stepped out and paid the driver.

Inside, the tall building was like a modern Tower of Babel, filled with the murmur of many voices and of radio music that seeped into the halls from behind the closed doors of the two and three-room "housekeeping" suites. Mary Faith never had seen a child, or heard the voice of a child, in the building.

The colored woman who helped out whenever the Maldons had parties was just emerging from their suite when Mary Faith arrived. She held the door open, and Mary Faith stepped inside. No one saw her for a moment as she stood in the tiny foyer, taking in the scene in the living room. Everything was just as she had known it would be. Four or five people were gathered around the tea-wagon at the far end of the room. Three or four others knelt on the rug beside a backgammon board. One couple danced slowly and dreamily in the middle of the floor. Kim and Claire.

Claire's yellow head was tilted back in the crook of Kim's arm, and she was saying something to him that made him smile. There was something in his face—a look of tender absorption—that made Mary Faith feel as if someone had taken tight hold of her heart and was squeezing it. And then in an instant that look was gone. Kim had caught sight of her. He said something to Claire, who turned and called out, "Hello, Mary Faith!" Then the two of them came forward.

"Hello, wife!" Kim said. "I had an idea you'd be along pretty soon, if I just waited for you."

"Yes, he's been fairly putting the floor, waiting for you," Claire put in, and the group around the tea-wagon burst into a roar of laughter.

Jack Maldon had come up behind Mary Faith. "Let me take your coat," he said.

"Thanks, Jack." They confronted each other gravely in the midst of the confusion and the crazy din, exactly as two people who spoke the same language might have faced each other in a crowd of foreigners.

"Do you want to come out to the kitchen while I wash glasses?" he asked.

"That's a great idea," said Kim cautiously. "You and Mary Faith go out and do your 'hevers of wood and carriers of water' act, and while you're doing that, I'll dance with your wife."

"Oh, come on and dance then and don't talk so much. Handsome!"

Claire interrupted. With troubled eyes Mary Faith watched them dance across the room. She felt just then that she would cheerfully surrender a coat of her life to be able to do what Claire was doing—to dance Kim away from everybody else, and make him like it.

For there was no doubt that Kim did like it. He followed Claire around the first like her shadow all the rest of the night. Mary Faith watched them thoughtfully, jealously, and with a kind of sick despair, whenever she emerged from the hot kitchen when she begged him to start home as soon as breakfast had been eaten and the crowd was beginning to dance and drink again.

And it came over her suddenly that he had always treated her with something between dislike and indifference when he was with Claire Mal-dons and her crowd.

"No, I'm not going home," he told her. "I'm having a good time.

If you want to leave, it's more than okay with me. . . . You sure do know how to put the graveyard touch to a party."

Mary Faith wondered how he could find this one of Claire's so entertaining. It was so like all the other gatherings in the Maldon flat.

The same drinks and games and dance-music. The same people—the red-haired woman who always wore pink, the one named Sally who always did a solo dance called "the mess-around" that she had learned, so she invariably explained, on a plantation in the South one year when she had wintered there, the little black-mustached man who could sit on a stone jug and light a match stuck in the toe of his shoes without falling off the jug. To Mary Faith it was all very dull and very silly.

Mary Faith finally telephoned for a cab and went home. It was broad daylight when she was awakened by the sound of coughing. She opened her eyes to find Kim standing beside the bed, trying to get out of his coat and vest. When she tried to help him, she found that his clothes were damp and that there were drops of moisture on his hair.

"What happened, Kim? You're wet."

He had to think for a minute before he answered her. "Raining, outside," he said finally. "Raining and snowing. My car stopped on the way home. Couldn't get it started again."

He refused to take the hot bath that she got ready for him, and by the time she had made him a cup of hot coffee he was sound asleep, breathing in an uneven, rapid way that made her remember the way he had breathed a few weeks before when he had bronchitis.

He slept all day. Even the covthough, that he ever struck me a blow. This mode of punishment was worse to me than a whipping. Occasionally Lana would have me locked up unjustly, once for a day and a half. I remember at one time she became angry at my mother about something and in a fit of passion threw a large knife at her, but fortunately no injury was done."

CHINA'S RETREAT

That winter, on January 19, 1797, Maj. Roberts died at Burlington, N. J., and Cincinnatus says, "My mother became inconsolable, and was taken very ill with a bilious cholera, which came very near proving fatal, but she finally recovered."

The following day, January 20, 1797, Andreas was elected a member, No. 622, of the American Philosophical Society, that august organization whose membership Philadelphia's elite were wont to venerate as the epitome of literary and scientific distinction. The early catalogs of the Society describe him as being "Now of Bristol, Pa., formerly President of the Society of Haarlem in Holland; and member and author of Travels of the Dutch Embassy in China."

China's Retreat as originally constructed contained two large halls, and fifteen rooms on two floors; with the kitchen, servants' lodging rooms, dairy, wine cellars, pantry, etc., in the basement. The latter was completely paved with blue marble, plastered, and celled. Some of the marble flags are three by six feet in size and all are neatly fitted together with dry joints. The windows of all the basement rooms are barred except one, and the walls are twenty inches thick. Van Braam was a careful man, and was not going to have his supplies pilfered!

The ceiling of the first floor is 17½ feet high; in fact everything about the building is planned in the most massive style. The eight windows on the River side, which is the front, are each twelve feet high and over six feet wide. The hand carved fire places, mouldings, and panellings are exquisite; but to the writer the interesting feature is the garret that extends over the whole with the curiously trussed adzed timbers, seven by eight inches square, that are there exposed. In the garret and the halls of each of the floors are square holes, about four feet on a side, one above the other. These were probably built for the operation of a dumb-waiter for carrying supplies and baggage from one floor to another. Four large chimneys, symmetrically placed at the corners, each contain four flues. Two good dug wells just outside the building at the northwest corner furnished the water. The out-buildings consisted of a coach house and stables that held eighteen horses and a dozen carriages; a barn; cattle stables; cider press; fowl house; and an ice house that would contain two thousand feet of ice. As for fruit trees, van Braam had a peach orchard, large apple orchard, a quantity of cherry trees; also several gardens. His larder must have been well supplied.

Van Braam, who was the first American at a Chinese Court, always maintained a Chinese atmosphere around his home. "In short," Moreau says, "the furniture, ornaments, everything at Mr. van Braam's reminds us of China. It is even impossible to avoid fancying ourselves in China, while surrounded at once by living Chinese, and by representations of their manners, their usages, their monuments, and their arts."

In the meanwhile, we have not heard anything from Johanna, the Dutch girl that van Braam had brought to China's Retreat from the Cape of Good Hope. However, his wife, who had been in Holland for the last six years, was hearing things, or thought she did, so had obtained a divorce. Then on February 3, 1798, he married Johanna, his divorced wife's niece, who was thirty years younger than he. Whether this marriage took place in China's Retreat or not, the writer has not been able to find out.

The first known marriage in the building occurred June 28, 1798, when the above-mentioned "Inconsolable" widow Roberts married eighteen months after the Major's decease, his life long friend, Capt. Staats Morris, U. S. A. It is unfortunate that history has not preserved the details of this event of undoubted magnificence, for the groom was of a very prominent family. Capt. Morris was the son of Lewis Morris, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and a nephew of Gouverneur Morris, one time Minister to France.

Van Braam is alleged to have entertained many distinguished guests at China's Retreat, including even Washington and Lafayette, but documentary history fails to show that he ever did so. The pine trees that these two men are supposed to have planted in front of the house date from only about the time of the Centennial; and it is extremely doubtful in the writer's mind if either of them ever saw China's Retreat. Prince Talleyrand, the French Minister of State was, however, a frequent visitor there. Concerning this gentleman, Cincinnatus Roberts writes as follows:

"Talleyrand had fled for refuge to the United States and made it his home for some time with my grandfather at China's Retreat. I remember he was a very ugly man with a deformed foot, about the middling size, and very talkative. He and my grandfather appeared to be very intimate friends, and often engaged in earnest conversation on the subject of European matters, of which I knew nothing at that time. Prince Talleyrand appeared to enjoy himself very well, and we all became very much attached to him on account of his sociability. My mother was treated with the utmost attention by him, for he was a very polite French gentleman, and she, being an accomplished lady, educated in Holland and speaking the French language fluently, was well calculated to entertain a gentleman of his high standing in society in the world."

Van Braam himself must have been a queer old fellow. He was quite scientific; also a remarkable linguist, being master of four or five languages and speaking several more. But, as his grandson said, "with all his talents he was greatly deficient in patience. He was possessed of the most unmanageable temper I ever witnessed in any person, and would exercise it occasionally upon his servants and family to the astonishment of all present. He would utter from the same voice, which often accompanied his guitar and while thus employed would be taken for that of a female, such sudden peals of roarings as resembled thunder more than that of the human voice."

Cazenove was another well-known person that visited China's Retreat. On July 3, 1796, Moreau, van Braam's publisher, made the following note in his diary:

"I went with Cazenove to see Mr. van Braam at his country house near Bristol which he has named China's Retreat. Cazenove left me there. I stayed overnight and the next day Mr. van Braam took me to Bristol to dinner (federal frolic) for the anniversary of Independence Day of the United States."

Van Braam probably knew the rest of the French emigres at that time in Philadelphia; he visited M. Liancourt, and the Duc d'Orleans who was the future Louis Philippe, so it is likely that they too were at China's Retreat at one time or another.

Van Braam had come to Bucks County with the intention of staying here the remainder of his life. But circumstances did not permit; just what went wrong the writer has not been able to unravel. Perhaps it was because of his quick temperament, or perhaps his unique household with its Oriental environment was a little too much for the placid farming life of Bristol Township. We are sure, however, he would have remained had it not been, as his grandson says, "for the deception and villainy practiced on him by those he considered his friends during his residence at China's Retreat."

So he advertised the estate for sale on April 26, 1798, in Claypoole's American Daily Advertiser, a Philadelphia newspaper; and on July 2, 1798, sold it to Walter Sims of Bristol Township for 10,706 pounds continental money. When van Braam sold out he put a clause in the deed that he had the privilege of buying it back within seven years, showing that at the time there was some possibility of his returning.

In the summer of 1798 Andreas van Braam, with his second wife, and Chinese collection, sailed for England. They settled at Barnes, near London, and there on January 8, 1800, was born a son named Andreas Charles van Braam Houckgeest. Van Braam was at that time over sixty years old. From London he moved with his family to Germany, for some unknown reason; and lived there about a year. In 1801 he went to Holland for the last time. His wife and child, of course, had never been there before, as she was born at the Cape of Good Hope and went direct to Pennsylvania.

In Holland they visited Cincinnatus Roberts and his Aunt Maria, only three years older than he, grandson and daughter, respectively, of van Braam by his first wife. The first wife had epilepsy and died in the meantime at Alkmaar, in North Holland on August 16, 1799, while van Braam was in England.

Andreas then bought a small house in Amsterdam where he and his second family lived for a short time, until his death on July 8, 1801. So passed away the builder and first owner of China's Retreat; so passed on one of the most interesting persons who ever resided temporarily in our country. On November 11, 1801, his collection was publicly sold by his cousins, Haantjes and van Helsingden whom he had named executors, but these men squandered the little that remained of the originally large fortune, and his young widow and infant son were left in straitened circumstances during the years that followed.

Thus closed the life of Andreas Everardus van Braam Houckgeest, the most interesting feature in the story of China's Retreat. This venerable building, although 137 years old this summer, is in excellent preservation. But van Braam is gone and things have changed! His 350 acre estate has been reduced to a mere dozen. They have taken off the sheet-copper roof, and the pagoda-like cupola that once adorned it, from which hung silver-tongued bells that tinkled in the breeze. From the windows at the ground level at the sides of the building, have been extended ridiculous little porticoes. Even if van Braam's ghost returned, it could no longer ride in the big coach-and-four, with a Chinese coachman and footman on the box, down China Lane, because a few years ago they changed the name to Cedar Avenue. And last but not least the name of his beloved home has been locally changed to China Hall.

Captain Sims, who bought China's Retreat from van Braam in 1798 as aforesaid, has the distinction of being the first American sea captain to carry our flag to China. Sims kept the property eight years, and on January 20, 1806, he and his wife, Rebecca, sold it to Wade Hampton of Columbia, S. C., for $35,000. Hampton kept it only three months; on April 14, 1806, he and his wife, Mary, sold it to Gabriel Manigault, of Charleston, S. C. However, the deed was lost and Manigault died, so on April 29, 1815, the Hampsons gave the executors of Gabriel Manigault a deed of confirmation, which was recorded. In 1818 the executors sold it to Samuel Wilcocks of Philadelphia, the deed still calling for the original 361 acres and 130 perches as surveyed in 1760. After this the farm was enlarged to 380 acres, and in March 1833 it was bought for $20,000 by the Episcopal Education Society of Pennsylvania; and Bristol College opened in China's Retreat in 1834. This endeavor lasted only 5 years, and in 1839 the infant college closed its doors forever. In 1843 Captain Alden Partridge started a military school in China's Retreat which they called the Literary, Scientific Military Institute; but this was also a failure and it lasted but three years. During the Civil War the building was used as a military hospital, and later by a school for the education of colored soldier's orphans. After it was vacated by Alexander Hazard and family there were several owners, among them Dr. Douglass and Robert Whitaker, before being purchased by Dr. S. J. W. Mintzer.

Dr. Mintzer spent several years here; died and was buried from China's Retreat. Mrs. Mintzer and two children continued to live here, conducting a summer boarding house for several seasons with varying success, before she moved to Philadelphia. About 1916 the property was purchased by George W. Wilkins, formerly of Lansdowne, who is the present owner.

And so closes our narrative of China's Retreat. The early history has been given rather full, while the later and less interesting account only abstracted. It is extremely fortunate, the writer thinks, that we have had this dear old building and its many associations in our county all these years; may it continue to stand for many generations to come a shining monument to the character of van Braam Houckgeest, its builder.

Girl Who Shot Dad
Kisses and Makes Up

Trooper Rothwell testified that he was called to the Sickar farm near Smith's Corner on the evening of April 17, after he had been informed at the Doylestown Emergency Hospital by Sickar that his daughter had shot him.

"Anne first told me when I arrived at the Sickar home that her Dad had secured the gun himself and that he was going after his wife, and that she got into a tussle with her father and the gun was discharged," Trooper Rothwell testified.

"Five exploded shells were recovered, three being located in the front room of the house where the shooting took place. Later Anne admitted that she herself got the revolver upstairs, out of a trunk and loaded it herself; that she came downstairs where her mother and father were in an argument and started to fire until she could not pull the trigger any longer. She told me that she threw the pistol in the barnyard and later she took me to the place and we found it."

"Two bullets were extracted from Philip Sickar's body last week in the Grand View Hospital."

Following the shooting, Anne told police that she shot her father in defense of her mother. The Sickars had been to an Easter Monday "home brew" party at the home of a neighbor, where Anne, according to her father, had been reprimanded because of her actions with one of the men of the party.

Miss Sickar informed District Attorney Eastburn that she was a daughter by her mother's first marriage and that her name is Anne Neprosth.

Those who will be summoned as witnesses in the case when it comes before the court include Paul Sickar, ten, son of Philip; who was an eye witness to the shooting; Philip Sickar, Corporal W. Paul Snyder, Dr. H. G. Grim, Dr. John J. Sweeney, Mrs. Sickar and Constable A. R. Atkins.

BEHIND the Scenes

HOLLYWOOD.
Reaching into its story coffers, RKO will give Dolores Del Rio the lead in "Green Mansions."

Just when the picture will be made is not certain. Merian C. Cooper has promised the Mexican actress a sophisticated role in her next film.

But when they do get around to producing the W. H. Hudson novel, it is fairly certain that Dolores will have Joe McCrea as her leading man. The two were immensely popular in "The Bird of Paradise," and here again is a story of love against a background of tropical wilderness.

Whether a motion picture can capture the haunting beauty of Hudson's novel remains to be seen. With a little over-emphasis, the girl of the forest can become a female Tarzan. But Cooper hopes to preserve the delicate texture of the romance.

He believes he'll have a box-office hit comparable to the Hawaiian tragedy.

They're telling how the Barrymore wit dropped up again on the set of "Dinner at Eight."

In this picture, Lee Tracy plays an actor's agent and John Barrymore his client. The two have a scene where Tracy tears into Barrymore, calling him every kind of a rotten actor.

At the first rehearsal, Barrymore answered the tirade with a chuckle.

"What's the matter?" asked Tracy.

"Nothing, Lee," said Barrymore. "Only I was just thinking that those lines sound faintly biographical."

HOLLYWOOD PARADE:

If you can believe report, not only Mary Pickford and Harry Cohn but Paramount as well are considering versions of "Alice in Wonderland." The Lewis Carroll satire is in public domain in this country, but the rights are still protected in England. It was for these rights that Paramount was negotiating.

Diana Wynyard's return to her native land was a triumph. Out of the 20 reporters who met the Empress of Britain, writes Jerry Horwin, 18 had come specifically to interview the heroine of "Cavalcade." This picture is a smash hit over there. Other American films rating high are "King Kong" and "The Kid from Spain."

After all these years, the Malibu film residents are being allowed to buy the land upon which their beach cottages are erected. Originally they signed a ten-year lease and then were given a chance to renew. Those who have bought a permanent title to their land include Bob Leonard, Buddy De Sylva and Tod Browning. And, speaking of homes, Mary Brian is building a new one at Toluca Lake.

That was Sandra Shaw with whom Gary Cooper was sitting tete-a-tete at the Coconut Grove.

And George O'Brien's new leading woman, Claire Trevor, is having steady dates with Ivan Lebedeff. He used to haunt the Hollywood Plaza.

When she was out here several months ago.

Desiring to introduce Wick to the Hollywood press, Paramount gave a luncheon party yesterday at the Roosevelt.

As usual, someone asked the actress how she likes Hollywood. A little wistfully, perhaps, she said it was too early to tell, that she has scarcely seen anybody but newspaper people.

For one who has had only 38 English lessons, Miss Wick shows a remarkable command of the language. Her vocabulary is sometimes lacking but her pronunciation is perfect.

ends, 10 shots right hand.

Patrolman Rothmel and all other entrants in the shoot used a .38-caliber Special pistol.

Following the victory, the Doylestown officer was presented with the State championship trophy cup by Brigadier General M. A. DeLaney, of Carlisle, and the coveted championship medal for 1933.

Following the State championship shoot at Harrisburg the Pennsylvania State Highway Patrol entered a team in a match held at the West Point Military Academy last Saturday, and here again the accuracy of Patrolman Rothmel enabled the State team to win the match by defeating the West Point Cadets and the New York State Police teams. The State Highway Patrol team registered a score of 1450 out of a possible 1500; the West Point Cadets scored 1423 out of 1500, and the New York State Police, 1416 out of 1500.

Members of the Patrol team competing at West Point included Lieutenant G. N. Pickering, of Philadelphia; Patrolman Rothmel, Doylestown; the new State champion Patrolman T. Jones, of Butler; Patrolman L. Feinola, of Washington; and Patrolman C. M. Mendenhall, of Williamsport.

INDEPENDENTS CAPTURE FIRST VICTORY OF SEASON

Two big innings, the first and sixth, were enough for the Independents to capture their first victory of the Bristol Twilight League, beating the Bristol Damp Wash A. A., 8-3, on St. Ann's field last night.

In the first canto the "Indies" pushed over three runs and then shoved over four more in the final set-out. In both frames, Damp Wash errors paved the way for the tallies. In the last inning, two errors by the Damp Wash moundsman, Dries, led to the scoring of the runs.

"Joe" Antonelli tossed them up for the winners and allowed seven hits, four of these coming in the last two innings when the losers scored all of their runs. He struck out nine batters and passed but one. For the first five innings he issued blanks to the Damp Wash team and then weakened in the last inning and was hit for three markers, two coming from the result of Smith's triple past Stallone in centerfield.

"Tex" Dries was the losing hurler and pitched fairly well. He was hit hard but only after the side should have been retired easily. Every batter on the Independent team that batted regularly received one hit or more. He was wild and passed five batters. Lasprella and Mondo led the winners with the stick, while Brushia, Smith and Kervick were the losers' best.

Smiles at Threats

Although he has received many kidnap threats, Jockey Silvio Couci, whose sensational riding has won him national fame, doesn't seem to be worrying much as he is pictured here at the Jamaica, L. I., track. The pony pilot has hired armed guards to protect him even while mounting and dismounting at the paddock.

BRUTUS HAMILTON
NEW CALIFORNIA
TRACK COACH --
HIS BEARS

THE POLE VAULT--
WILL BE A THRILLING BATTLE, WITH SUCH SUPER STARS AS MILLER AND GRABER...

BURNLEY

THE WEST COAST RELAYS HAVE BETTER MARKS IN NEARLY ALL EVENTS THAN THE PENN RELAYS AND DRAKE RELAYS!

WHEN the West Coast Relays are held this Saturday at Fresno, Cal., the eyes of track fans will be on the duel between Southern California's champion Trojans and Stanford's menacing Red Horde.

For three years hand running the mighty Trojan track team has swept all before it, winning both the Coast Relays and the I. C. 4A crown on each occasion. This year Coach Dean Cromwell has another strong squad, though he lost many stars by graduation after last year's triumph. Meanwhile "Dink" Templeton at Stanford has come up with what is undeniably the strongest track team the Cards have had in many a year.

Dink's gang first demonstrated their strength several weeks ago by trouncing the Trojans in the first of their dual meets at the Stanford Stadium. This victory was all the more remarkable because it was achieved with the Stanford ace of aces, Big Ben Eastman, on the sidelines with a pulled muscle. With the Blond Blazer in there, the Red-men would have triumphed in even more decisive fashion. As it was, they copied the meet by the score of 67 to 64.

If Stanford wins the West Coast Relays Saturday, it would seem that the championship reign of Cromwell's trackmen is finally doomed. On the other hand, if the Trojans can nose out the Red Menace at the Relays, it will give them a psychological advantage when they defend their intercollegiate title late this month.

There will be a number of famous stars competing at the Relays this year. One of the chief centers of interest is sure to be the pole vault, featuring the two greatest sky pilots in the world—Bill Grabner, who holds the record, and Bill Miller, the Olympic title-holder. Miller's team-mate, Deacon of Stanford, is also a great vaulter, so that it would be no great shock if he nosed out both of the more famous stars.

Brutus Hamilton, California's new track coach, will be sending his first team into the West Coast Relays, and he hopes to make a good showing. Brutus formerly coached at the University of Kansas, where he was responsible for the development of the great Glenn Cunningham, present king of U. S. milers. Hamilton's ace, Bullet Bob Kiesel, has been bothered this year by an old leg injury that has kept him out of several meets, thus hurting the Bears' chances. When he's right, he's pretty certain to win against any of the present college sprinters on the Pacific Coast.
